

2/5/2020

Dear Apple,

I'm the founder of Micro.blog and developer of the iOS app Micro.blog. There is no registered trademark for "Micro.blog" and I fully support third-party iOS apps such as Gluon to use "Micro.blog" in either their app name or subtitle.

The community on Micro.blog often uses third-party apps for interacting with the platform, similar to how some users on Twitter also use third-party iOS apps such as Twittrific and Tweetbot, so using the name "Micro.blog" in these apps that are compatible with Micro.blog does not introduce any confusion for users.

Thank you. If you have any questions, I'm including my contact info below.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Manton Reece', with a stylized, cursive script.

Manton Reece

Phone: 512-658-2162

Apple ID: manton@micro.blog

Team ID: 3F9MDJ6K4E